Real islanders wear gumboot shirts

Expressing yourself as a "real islander" by buying a special new t-shirt can help the United Way campaign currently underway.

The staff of Mouat's Clothing Co. have combined their talents to create five different sweatshirts featuring a symbol of island life — gumboots.

"We all know we need these boots," says Mary Paul of Mouat's, "and we have to love them."

The shirts are available in seven colours and five "themes."

There is the "work gumboot" shirt called Nine to Five, distinctive for the blob of mud on the boot's toe and an axe and chopping block in the background.

The After Five shirt features glitzy gumboots ready to tackle Salt Spring's exciting night life. For the trendier islander there is a Designer style bursting with flower power. Squeaky clean and shiny is the boot for church called Sunday.

The fifth option gives Salt Spring a distinctive flag to rival those of Canada, B.C. and the United States — with yes, a gumboot as its emblem.

Staff members Mary Paul and Barb Isles say they wanted to offer sweatshirts aimed at residents rather than tourists and at the same time contribute to the community. For every gumboot shirt sold, Mouat's will donate one dollar to the United Way fund, which provides the Community Centre with an annual operating grant.

Capturing the "spirit, style and sense of humour" of Salt Spring is the idea behind the gumboot themes, says Paul.

United Way campaign chair Sue McNair is delighted with any project which will help achieve this year's goal of $25,000. Current donations amount to half the goal as a United Way thermometer in Sooz Sewing Company window indicates. McNair is encouraging residents to push up the thermometer even quicker.

Workshop helps with coping

If you tend to be a perfectionist, are driven, have an overcrowded calendar, need to be needed and have dysfunctional and unsatisfying relationships, a workshop called Emerging from Codependence could be made for you.

Psychotherapist Linda Popov will facilitate the workshop on Saturday, November 17 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Community Centre.

Popov says she is "an expert on codependence because I'm an expert codependent."

She has also worked extensively in the psychotherapy, social work and hospice care fields. Her focus now lies in offering women's empowerment retreats and marriage enrichment workshops. She is also a director of WellSpring International Educational Foundation, which publishes spiritual educational materials.

She says confusion surrounds the term "codependence," with volumes of material and self-help books written on the subject.

Popov has developed a definition which she uses in her work.

"Codependence is a way of living in which people are so focused on caretaking or controlling others that they are out of touch with their own needs and feelings," she says. "They have difficulty setting boundaries and trusting others to care for their own needs and to live with the consequences of their own mistakes. They are compulsive fixers and helpers."

Codependents habitually seek out relationships with needy people

She says "it's important to understand the origin of the term comes from people who live with people who have chemical dependence." Codependents "habitually seek out relationships with needy people such as alcoholics or severely dysfunctional people" and are themselves "addicted to being needed," she says.

She emphasizes that if trying to control people does not form a major part of your life, then you are likely not a codependent.

There is room for humour in discussing this subject. A hard core codependent would probably attend the workshop because he or she believes they could use the information to help a loved one. Popov says to these people, "If you think you are doing this workshop for someone else, guess what?" It is essential to look at yourself, if you are to recover from codependency, she says.

Defining codependence, assessing the extent of codependent patterns in relationships and how to get on the road to recovery will be covered in the six-hour workshop.

The key to recovering from codependency is to shift the focus from "other" to "self," she explains.

Admission to Emerging from Codependence is by donation, and the suggested amount being $25. Persons interested in participating should call the Community Centre at 537-9971 and leave their name and phone number with staff.

Firemen win merit trophy

A new trophy is adorning Salt Spring Island Fire Hall as a result of the department's fundraising success during 1989.

Salt Spring firefighters received the Fire Department Merit Award from the Muscular Dystrophy Association of Canada for raising the most amount of money in its category across B.C. in 1989. Fire Chief Les Wagg said his department topped all others in the $1,000 to $3,000 classification by collecting just under $3,000.

Wagg was pleased with receiving the honour. "I think it's an incentive to get us going," he said, adding the various awards the department has won over the years give members encouragement to do even more for their community.

He also says "it is important for people to know the money we collect goes to a good cause."

The fire department's 1990 Muscular Dystrophy drive brought in

WE REMEMBER - Ivan Mouat pins the annual poppy on Dave Maguire's jacket to honour the memory of the soldiers who died in both World Wars.

High school students to remember Clemo

Fred Clemo was one of Henry Bullock's boys. He came to Salt Spring from an orphanage in Victoria about 1935.

On November 11, he will be remembered.

Byron Frederick John Clemo was born on September 7, 1922. He gained a Grade 8 education before becoming one of Bullock's boys. He joined the Royal Canadian Navy in 1939. Clemo was serving on H.M.C.S. Ottawa on North Atlantic convoy duty when he celebrated his 20th birthday.

Fred Clemo

The ship was sunk days later.

Grace Graham, as president of the Students' Council at Gulf Islands Secondary School, will participate in the Remembrance Day ceremony by laying a wreath in Clemo's memory.

The wreath-laying will mark the third occasion a Salt Spring resident has been honoured through a student remembrance.

The parade will arrive at the Cenotaph in Centennial Park at 10:45 a.m.. Close to the hour, a bugler will play Last Post with one note to mark the beginning and end of a two minute silence at 11 a.m.

As the parade moves off from the Cenotaph, two veterans of Dunkirk Ron Holcroft and John Carr will take the salute.

Holcroft was a corporal in the Royal Intelligence Corps at that Belgium fishing village which marked an early defeat of Allied forces in Europe in May of 1940. Carr was serving as corporal with the Royal Army Service Corps.

In addition to the ceremonies in Ganges, other forms of remembrance will be unveiled in B.C. The province released a list of names of 23 servicemen who died in the Second World War who have been honoured by having their names given to geographic features around the province.

Since 1950, B.C. has named more than 700 such features in memory of servicemen who died in war.

Canadians have served their country in battles since 1665. There were Canadian troops involved in the Boer War, the First and Second World Wars as well as the Korean Conflict. Canada has lost 114,000 individuals in various wars.

"They shall grow not old as we who are left grow old. Age shall not weary them, nor the years condemn. In the going down of the sun and in the morning, we shall remember them": Legion meeting prayer.

War presents mixture

It was a war of pain and suffering and death. It was a war of routine duties and boredom. It was a war of heroism. But it was also a war of excitement, challenge, comradeship and humour. With some, it was a mixture so closely woven that there was no way of separating the threads.

by Frank Richards
Driftwood Contributor

It was that kind of war for a serving member of the Royal Air Force. A rebel and a man of his own strong views, he was ever in trouble until his crime sheet looked like an ancient sheet of blotting paper bearing line after line after line of offences and punishments.

I remember him in the dining room one day shortly after his enlistment. One of his fellow recruits had engaged in bullying a diminutive newcomer who rarely stood up for himself. The bully and the rebel sat at the table and a low conversation took all their attention. The rebel told his victim just what he thought of him and there was no response. He then switched to parentage.

"I suppose you never knew who your father was," he observed sadly. The bully jumped up and was knocked down for his pains. That cost him 14 days for fighting in the dining room.

His service was a long list of infractions, petty and insignificant, but lengthy.

The station warrant officer was missing one morning so the rebel found the warrant officer's coat and took the parade. His rank was AC2, the lowest rank in the Royal Air Force. He got 14 days for that. It sometimes seemed that he was confined to camp more often than he was allowed out.

Guard duty cost him dear.

"Halt! Who goes there?" he called out in the time-honoured terms.

It was his commanding officer who went there.

That's no way to challenge someone approaching his post! Say it loudly "as if he meant it!"

Leaning forward, he bawled out the challenge in his pub-trained bull-like voice against the other man's ear. But stay! That wasn't the way to hold a rifle! The officer grabbed hold of the sentry's weapon and demonstrated the proper manner to hold it as "if he meant it".

The officer was left to the post.

"You do it so much better than me, you might as well carry on," commented the affronted sentry.

He went to a detention barracks for 28 days as a reward for that effort.

Then came the day when the rebel had enough. He decided that the only way to excitement was to fly and applied for a remustering to aircrew.

"Too many people with that ideal" growled the air officer commanding. "We need rebels. We want men who can think for themselves and act for themselves."

Within days he was posted to an observer's school.

"With your record you'll never get anywhere," said the commanding officer heavily.

But alas! He never made it. Within weeks he had a medical check which showed that he was suffering from tuberculosis and he was out of the air force like a shot.

He never really recovered and nearly four years ago he died of emphysema.

He was my twin brother.

Author to speak at historical meeting

Author Joe Garner will be guest speaker at the Salt Spring Island Historical Society's monthly meeting on Tuesday, November 13. Garner will talk about "some of the older families who came to the island to settle and live," when members and guests gather at 2 p.m.

by Iris Warner
Driftwood Contributor

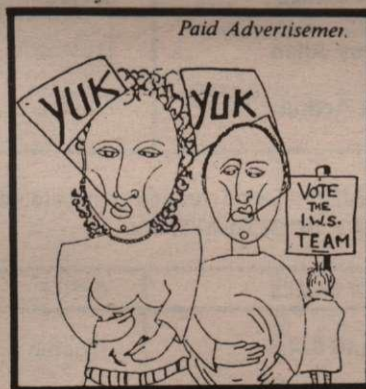

Two of Garner's books can be found in the Mary Hawkins Library: Never Fly Over An Eagle's Nest (1980) and Never a Time to Trust (1984).

Born on Salt Spring Island and currently living near Nanaimo, Garner for years was actively engaged in the wide range of activities to be found in the typical west coast trades — logging, construction and transportation. These have given him the background for the work islanders know him by best - his book, Never Fly Over An Eagle's Nest.

It was written, says the introduction, "with a desire to leave a true picture of pioneering and the problems that faced the settlers of this era."

Since the historical society shares this interest and concern Garner's talk will be of particular value to members, and visitors who wish to attend the meeting.

Helen Keys

Director named to
LMH board

A recent appointment of Helen Keys as Capital Regional District representative brings Lady Minto Hospital board of directors to full strength.

Keys replaces Sandy Gordon who has served as CRD representative for two years. He had been chairman of the board of directors prior to that time.

With a background in international economics, Keys served as Canadian trade commissioner as well as special advisor to the government of New Zealand. She also has represented Canadian interests at international meetings and conferences such as Joint Economic Commissions, the World Bank, International Monetary Fund and the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development.

In addition she has worked with Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA) on planning and evaluation of initiatives to assist development of health care, literacy and other social programs.

While involved with various federal ministries such as external affairs, industry, trade and commerce as well as finance, Keys advised Canadian companies in development of health-related programs and projects for Third World countries.

Of her appointment to Lady Minto Hospital board of directors, Keys said, "I would bring no preconceived biases or axes to grind to the board and would represent no special interest group.

"I would, in fact, expect to represent the policies of the CRD and to co-operate to the fullest extent with other board members to ensure the delivery of effective, efficient hospital care: care with emphasis on quality as well as timely availability."

Country Gourmet

JOHN EDWARDS

I've nettled the king full sore". - Guy Fawkes, just before he was sauteed.

A reader has asked me to write again about nettles and I thought at once of Guy Fawkes.

In my childhood nettles were damned for their stings, just as Guy Fawkes was damned by James I for trying to sting him. For generations the Guy has been ritualistically burned every November 5 on bonfires of rubbish, while children riot amid explosions and colours of fireworks. The Houses of Parliament, meanwhile, in the kingdom of Margaret and Brian, continue to rule venally and to throw the opinions of dissenters into the flames...

Most people have given as much thought to nettles as to Guy Fawkes, and yet experience should alter this childlike perception. Picked with respect and carefully cooked, nettles discover a surprising benevolence. They combine three great virtues: nettles are salubrious, savory and free.

To the uninitiated, who do not believe these plants should be eaten by Canadians in the first place, nettles are a culinary non sequitur. Let them celebrate the ghosts of Hallowe'en, not the plots of Guy Fawkes, as they stand at the edges of dark fields in Fulford and Ottawa, kicking the nettles to pieces while rockets zoom and splatter into the night.

But apply the same illogic (a nonce-word) to some prickly sea urchins, or to a spiny codfish, or even to a heap of cold, clammy, uncooked potatoes...and nettles are suddenly legitimate, or, at least, have found companions with whom they may be damned.

Prisoners of metaphors

Nettles and the Guy are prisoners of their own metaphors. Like eels, or the unmentionable but perfectly edible parts of domestic male quadrupeds, or the expensive soup made, minutely, from the nests of certain xenophobic (and who can blame them?) Chinese sparrows.

Consider, further, the romantic literature which surrounds oysters, whose armanent is much greater than the feeble stings of nettles. Lies! It's all lies! A shucked oyster has as much to do with love as a steamed nettle does with pain. In fact, I think oysters are the more wicked of the two.

I shall elucidate, to quote a high school English teacher who never once did.

Last August I was upcoast shucking a few molluscs on the stern of a schooner, after a successful, lickish raid on an oyster lease off Redonda. I was enjoying a marvellous daydream. This one featured a tough aerobic workout with Jane Fonda to the music of Chariots of Fire followed by a tete-a-tete over Oysters Rockefeller. Sigh!

Suddenly the knife skipped across the shell and described a deep arc through a middle finger before it stopped halfway down the nail. Much language in the air and crimson on the deck.

After repairs I glared reproachfully at the knife with its cocky coat of arms in blue and white. I was angry enough to throw it into the water, there to rust pollutingly until retrieved and analyzed by a puzzled archaeology graduate student in the middle of the 21st century.

It would be the foundation for her doctoral thesis: 'The Influence Of The Swiss Army Knife On West Coast Mariculture In The Period 1990-1995'. Imagine the Canada Council funding!

But a painful sentence impaled itself on my brain: Swiss alpine guides don't spend much time prying oysters off the north face of the Eiger.

This autumn the rains are punctual but the frosts are late. Some precocious nettles have started growing again on Isabella Point, just in time for Guy Fawkes" Night. Its a treat to eat them, however, unseasonable they may be on this excellent November 5.

Sauteed stinging nettles

A pair of gloves bought at Mouat's for 99 cents (a bargain, hey?)

A brown bag half full of nettles
1 C sliced mushrooms, but not the kind James Barber sits marvellously on

2 or 3 cloves of garlic, chopped finely
9 or 10 coriander seeds, crushed
2T roasted pine nuts, almonds will do if you must Good olive oil

Salt and pepper.

Put on the gloves and hunt in the salal for some very early, or extremely late, nettles. They will be huddled low to the ground, brooding and nasty and unwilling to be picked.

Steam them, until they give up their stings. Now press most of the water out and cut them into squares. Throw these into a frying pan. Add pine nuts and mushrooms and season with garlic, coriander seeds, salt and pepper. At this time of year the coriander will be dry and won't have that splendid, pungent, provocative smell of lemon, but do not lament. Saute. Top each serving with a pile of white cheddar shavings (I almost said cedar). Serve sauteed stinging nettles instead of pedestrian spinach or some other commonplace greens which you will

Appeal courts set in motion

Machinery was set in motion last week for the two courts of appeal within the Gulf Islands School District 64. On Thursday afternoon, November 1, three members of each court were sworn in by Government Agent Virginia Bobroske. The ceremony took place in the banquet room of the Ganges hotel.

Salt Spring Island court, sitting at the Harbour House location, will hear appeals against assessments of Salt Spring properties.

Outer Islands courts of revision will be held in two locations, on North Pender Island and in Sidney.

Chairman of the Outer Islands court of revision No. 1 is Elma Moebe, who will sit with Paul Scoones, of Galiano, and Gordon Wallace, of North Pender Island.

Frank Richards is chairman of the Salt Spring Island No.2 court along with Bill Garrick and Jack Albhouse.

Brian Wilkinson, area assessor, explained the number of appeals this year is higher than has been the case in recent years. The increase is attributed to a general increase in valuation this year.

Property owners who have appealed the assessed value of their properties are advised when to appear. Each appellant has the opportunity to detail his reasons for believing that his assessment is excessive. The assessor then submits his reasons for having reached that figure. The members of the court will then decide whether to uphold the appeal or to reject it.

Every appellant has recourse to a further hearing. The appeal against the court of revision is then heard during 1991 by the Board of Appeal.

The revision courts will complete their hearings by December 15.

What will a Secondary School be like in the year 2020?

You are invited to participate in "Awareness Week", November 24-30

We have a unique opportunity for input into the planning for the New High School, which will be among the first built in B.C. for the 21st Century.

The School will be designed with specific thought to the upcoming changes in education, the school's philosophy and the needs of the community.

On Saturday, November 24, a conference highlighting guest speakers will be held in the Gulf Islands Secondary School gymnasium. The conference is open to all members of the community. The purpose of the conference will be to share information, "Look into the Future", and gather "Input".

During the week of November 26-30 students, teachers, parents and community members will have the opportunity to actively explore the needs and possibilities of the new high school. The architects Marshall Garyali Partnership will be available to receive community input and share information about the site at their temporary office located in Ganges.

Environment effort feted

Well-known on Salt Spring for her dedication to salmon and stream enhancement, Kathy Reimer's efforts have been recognized with a Victoria-area Environment Watch award.

Victoria radio station CJVI invited nominations for "Environment Watch" awards in group, small business and individual categories in the southern Vancouver Island region. Salt Spring schoolteacher Deborah Nostdal submitted newspaper clippings and a synopsis of Reimer's volunteer history to the contest which resulted in Reimer receiving the award.

A plaque and a $250 cheque, which she will turn over to the Salt Spring Salmon Enhancement Society, were presented to Reimer at the November 1 ceremony in Victoria.

Reimer said she was "excited" about being honoured in this way. "Because it is a Victoria award, it really gives our society recognition," she says. She knew she had been nominated by Nostdal but expected any one of a number of long-time Victoria volunteers to be chosen as the winner.

Reimer has been the volunteer biologist in charge of Salt Spring's salmon enhancement group for the past seven years. Since 1986 she has also supervised John Howard Society workers on enhancement projects in the Gulf Islands.

With a background in marine biology, she says "I started noticing all these fish stranded in puddles, and started running up and down the creeks rescuing little fish." Interest and support from neighbours and other concerned islanders was immediately forthcoming.

Reimer is proud of her group's accomplishments and the wide range of people involved in fisheries projects. School children, commercial fisherman, members of the rod and gun club and environmentalists are some of the people who have combined their efforts for the betterment of the salmon resource, she says.

"I am really interested in mainstreaming the environmental movement," says Reimer. The result, she feels, is responsible stewardship of the resource.

Salt Spring Salmon Enhancement Society's work will continue for some time. "Our mandate is to restock all of the creeks on the Gulf Islands," she says. "We've taken on an enormous task."

New Mahon Hall chairs purchased

• Salt Spring community halls should be playing less musical chairs with the purchase of new ones for Mahon Hall.

The Parks and Recreation Commission approved a $2,000 expenditure on more chairs at its October 29 meeting.

Recreation committee chairman

Lawrie Neish noted some chairs belonging to the Community Arts Council and once at Mahon Hall were now at Beaver Point Hall.

• Parks committee chairman Bill Curtin told commission members that $2,500 was received from market vendors as a contribution to the upkeep of Centennial Park.

Auxiliary welcomes newcomers

The regular monthly meeting of the Auxiliary to the Lady Minto Gulf Islands Hospital was held in the Upper Hall Ganges United Church on Monday, October 22.

by Marg Cuttall
Driftwood Contributor

Four new members, among 40 members present, had responded to a plea for help, which appeared in a recent issue of the Driftwood. President Bea Carr welcomed them most warmly.

The meeting opened with the auxiliary prayer and reports from the various co-ordinators followed.

A contingent of 23 auxiliary members attended the British Columbia Association of Hospital Auxiliaries held in Ladysmith on October 10. The session opened with words of welcome from the various dignitaries of the Ladysmith Hospital, all with glowing remarks for the work of the volunteers, and a special message from area representative Christiane DeKonick. A short business meeting then took place followed by the roll call showing 193 members present.

First guest speaker was Dr. J. Dube whose topic was "Health For All in the Year 2000" with particular emphasis on Trinidad and the education of the youth in that impoverished part of the world. Lunch was next on the agenda and as it was being set up members toured the memorial gardens and the hospital just a block away.

After lunch, BCAHA president Pauline Lamb gave a short address welcoming the volunteers, thanking them for their attendance and their dedication to service. She then introduced the afternoon speaker. Training manager Terry Lawson chose the subject "Communications and Teamwork". It was most hilarious and at the same time a truly informative presentation. At the conclusion, Lawson received a standing ovation. The meeting then adjourned and after good-byes to old friends, the Salt Spring delegation took off for home.

The foregoing report on the Area Conference was not available for presentation at this meeting.

A conversation with Ray Smith, President and CEO of MacMillan Bloedel

Mr. Smith, MacMillan Bloedel has been inviting public comment and input on forest issues for some time now. What are you hearing from people?

Plenty. A lot of folks are pretty worried out there. They're concerned that we won't have forests to meet our needs in the future. I hear them telling us that they want economic security, but not at the expense of the environment.

Unfortunately, many people are being made to feel like they have to choose between two evils - destroying the environment or economic ruin.

But it is really possible to have it all?

Not to the same degree we've been used to having it all, no. We have to find balance among a whole bunch of concerns, and that means sacrifices, for the forest industry and for the public as well.

The challenge is to do more with what we've got - to get creative with options that allow our economic and environmental needs to and how we utilize this resource.

"It really comes down to a question of balance."

Our scientists and researchers are finding ways to get better yields by planting superior seedlings and to make sure our survival rates stay well over 90 per cent.

We're also developing ways to use different species and grades of timber for new products, like our new engineered wood made from fast-growing aspen.

So yes, we're looking at all sorts of methods to make better use of what we have and to make sure we replenish it for the future.

It's really a question of balancing society's needs for houses, newspapers, books and packaging with what the resource can sustain.

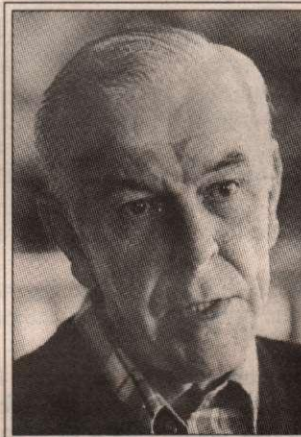

But what about the means you use to achieve that balance? How do you reconcile people's criticisms and concerns about harvesting practices with what you feel you have to do to get the job done?

Most people are concerned with the way logging looks, the aesthetics. Because it takes around seven years for a reforested area to "green-up", it looks ugly for a while.

We can't eliminate that scar entirely, but we are paying more attention to appearance, trying smaller openings, landscape logging techniques and different road construction techniques in areas that are visually sensitive.

We're trying to accommodate the public's concerns wherever we can

"The challenge is...to get creative about options that will allow our economic and environmental needs to complement rather than conflict with each other."

"We need to keep talking with the public, listening to their concerns, inviting their ideas."

complement rather than conflict with each other.

So how does that apply to the forest industry?

We have to keep looking at ourselves, at how we tend the forests to find a better balance.

Is that enough?

I don't have a pat answer for that one. In fact, no one has. That's why we need to keep talking with the public, listening to their concerns, inviting their ideas and sharing our views.

Rational solutions are possible, if we all share that goal of finding a balance.

Talk to us.

Coho closing boundary extended

Enthusiasm of fly fishermen prompted an extension of the boundary closing coho fishing at Fulford Harbour.

Originally, federal fisheries closed the harbour to coho salmon fishing inside a line running from the wharf across to the old log dump. Fishermen were permitted to take cutthroat trout and were limited to use of a single-point hook.

But with an increase in the number of fly fishermen cruising harbour waters, fisheries folk extended the line further out.

From now until December 31, the line runs from the north shore at the fishing boundary sign near Jackson Rock south to the fishing boundary sign on the south shore.

Boundary markers are large square, white signs.

Fishing for cutthroat trout with a single-point hook is permitted inside the line but coho cannot be taken there.

Island seniors learn to be safer drivers

Salt Spring Island boasts 48 safer senior drivers after presentation of two driving courses on the island in October.

Sponsored by the Vancouver Island Safety Council and the local Seniors for Seniors group, the 55 Alive program is a refresher driving course for people over 55 years of age. It was created to address the high accident rate for older drivers in British Columbia. Only teen-age drivers are involved in more vehicle mishaps in the province.

Victoria instructor Bill Bradstock kept his students both interested and laughing in last week's six hour course held Monday and Tuesday at Mahon Hall. "It's better to be 10 minutes later now than 30 years earlier in the next world," he joked when explaining the importance of driving slowly through a busy residential area.

55 Alive covers several aspects of driving especially pertinent to seniors.

A discussion of the frustrations course participants have experienced while driving is held on the first day. From that, Bradstock explains how physical changes affect one's driving with age. Decreased vision, depth perception, hearing and reaction speed all hamper the older driver, he says. The effects of medication must also be considered, he adds.

Awareness of hazards in different driving environments forms another part of the course. Tips for driving at night, in inclement weather or on freeways are given by Bradstock.

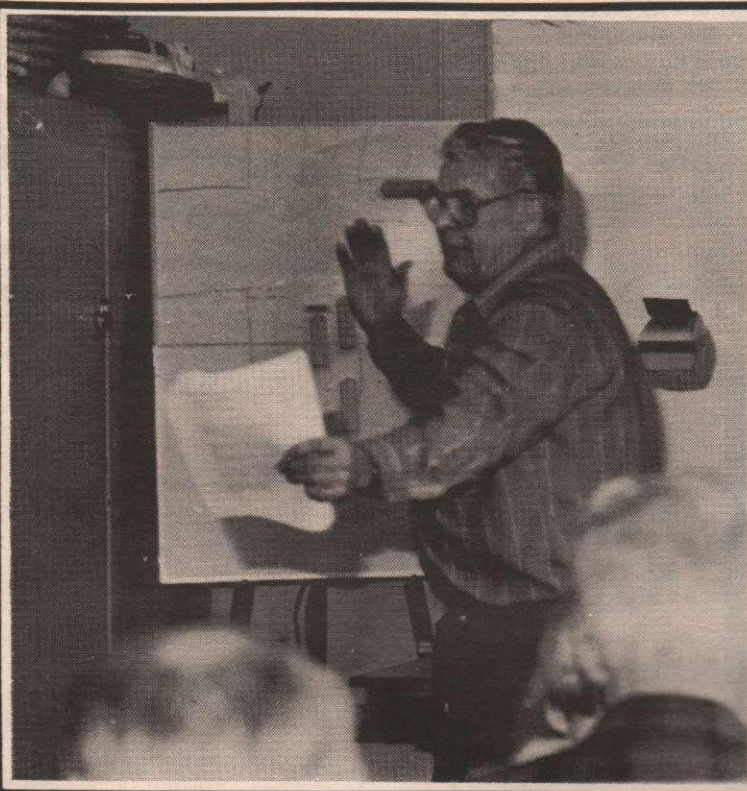

He also notes the change in the kind of traffic on the roads these days. "There's a tremendous mix of vehicles," he says, and bicycles or motorcycles are less likely to be seen by someone with vision impairment. 55 Alive emphasizes the need to look for pedestrians and all types of vehicles.

Seniors for Seniors initiated the holding of the course on Salt Spring.

Bradstock says he loves teaching the 55 Alive course to seniors. "They have so much knowledge and so much enthusiasm," he says. "I leave those classes on a real high."

Due to high demand, the second course was offered last week after 28 people were accommodated on October 16 and 17.

A final test is not part of the 55 Alive class. As Bradstock says, "the test is how well your driving improves — and it does."

STAY WAY BACK - Driving course instructor Bill Bradstock explains fundamentals of safe driving to students in the 55 Alive driving course held at Mahon Hall on October 19 and 20. Forty-eight senior drivers took the six-hour course offered in two sessions on Salt Spring.

WHY GAMBLE?

ATTENTION ADVERTISERS

Start planning for the GST.

The Goods and Services Tax (GST) is a new kind of sales tax. The 7% GST will be added to the cost of most goods and services at each stage of production. Then registered businesses can apply for credits for the GST they paid on goods and services necessary for their businesses.

Consumers, un-registered businesses and organizations and tax exempt businesses will pay the 7% GST without the benefit of tax credits of rebates.

Community newspapers must charge the GST on all advertising. However registered advertisers will be entitled to a full input tax credit for the GST they paid on their advertising.

Community newspaper advertising does not include any manufacturer's sales tax. Advertising costs will not increase because of the GST for businesses eligible for GST input tax credits.

If you have any questions about how the GST will work with respect to advertising in the Driftwood please write or call us at

Three seeking outer islands seat for CRD

How the Capital Regional District can best serve the Outer Gulf Islands marks the campaign for director for those islands.

With three candidates, one from each of Saturna, Pender and Galiano Island, the election draws on a variety of experience, interest and backgrounds.

Gordon Barnes

A resident of Pender Island, Gordon Barnes has a concern about representation from the islands. "It has to be capable and knowledgeable about the uniqueness of these islands," he said.

Barnes served a term on the Advisory Planning Commission, is a warden for St. Peter's Anglican Church and sits on the executive of the Lions Club. He is involved with Crime Stoppers and volunteers for duty at the fall fair and the garbage cleanup detail.

"My effort would be to pull all the islands together in family fashion," he said, "for their own good."

He would take a non-biased approach to problems to create a positive attitude for residents. Barnes has lived on the islands for 12 years, first on Galiano and later on Pender.

As an "independent", he would bring a fresh start to CRD efforts on the islands and work to eliminate

"undue influence of any particular group."

Jacques Campbell

Pronouncing her name "Jackie", Jacques Campbell ignores references to her well-known father Jim Campbell.

"I can't live my life in a shadow," she said of the matter. "Some people will support me, some won't. In the end it's no big thing."

For 10 years she has been active in the Saturna Community Club and has held various positions on various committees. Her interests centre on recycling because, she noted, "I've seen the difference recycling has made."

That interest has led to a frustration for her. Residents have been ignored by the CRD in their efforts to create waste management on the island.

"The CRD board thinks all the islands are the same," she protested. "I don't think we're the same. Each community is different."

Campbell would also seek more opportunity for residents and try to limit the number of restrictions they face.

Although she is from Saturna, the smallest of the islands, she said "I'd represent everyone from the Gulf Islands fairly and would listen to all."

Her work with the community club also has an affect. "I'm very receptive to community groups," she explained, "groups which speak about what the community wants to do."

Don MacDonald

Saying he understands the limitations of the Outer Islands director who has one vote out of 60 votes on the CRD board is Don MacDonald.

"It's not a power trip," he said of the position.

Macdonald is a director of the Galiano Chamber of Commerce and the Galiano Club and has served the island for two terms on the Islands

Trust.

While he sees no real issues facing the islands, he can discern a problem in the relationship between the CRD and Island Trust. The reasons, he explained, go back to when the Trust was formed. Land use authority was taken away from the CRD and invested in the Trust.

"Why would the CRD still be concerned about something that happened so many years ago?" he asked.

He gave as example some bylaws passed by the CRD which make life difficult for the Trust, bylaws such as those which covers gravel pits or the meat inspection bylaw.

Macdonald does see a potential issue arising around solid waste.

"The Outer Islands seem to be left out of any plans," he said.

"Galiano has a good dump now but...."he left the speculation unfinished.

Dear Murray,
To print your poem of the day I'm flattered that you had to pay So I followed suit—to get my say I didn't say "Lock the island, throw away the key" Just plan carefully, slowly for the whole community. Let's not copy the mistakes of Richmond and Langley Development and construction run our economy, you say Professionals, artists, tourists and farmers don't pay? I say community values are important —and hey Far outweigh the price for your timber they pay Do you suggest that night clubs and McDonalds in Ganges are OK? Who'd run the trust if only you had your way? Would you do a better job than the candidates in the fray? Run an ad, endorse them tell us why, and what they say! You suggest I join circles, eat carrots, stay out of the way And not worry about the results on election day Growing food, celebrating life-I leave my mark that way Is that your mark on Mt Tuam I can see from Pat Bay? Randy H.

ALL BARKMULCH IS THE SAME?

True or False
ANSWER: Bark mulch can be coarse or fine with or without chunks of wood. It can be Fir, Hemlock, Cedar or Balsam, fresh or composted. Fresh bark of any kind has a sharp smell, irritates the hands and feet with slivers and may contain toxic oils. Composted bark is softer, more attractive, doesn't smell and holds moisture better.

SPORTS SECTION

FOLLOW THE BOUNCING BALL - Salt Spring boys soccer team player Jeff Neilson bumps and grinds his way around Bays United opponents while teammates wait for a pass. The Salt Spring squad earned a 3-1 victory over the Oak Bay team at a game at Portlock Park on Sunday.

F.C. drops game

Salt Spring F.C. 1 Athletics 2
Salt Spring F.C. played in Victoria last weekend and came up with a strong performance, but unfortunately no points in a 2-1 loss to the Athletics.

Although F.C. controlled almost 75 per cent of the game, their failure to capitalize on scoring opportunities, a problem they had last season, came back to haunt.

by Malcolm Legg
Driftwood Contributor

In the opening half F.C. came out flying, utilizing speed and pin-point passing, as they stormed the Athletics defence. In fact if one did not know better, they might have thought they were watching England's Tottenham Hotspurs who were on TSN two weeks ago.

The mid-field trio of Peterson, M. Brown and Walker were moving the ball with authority, creating numerous chances for the front-runners. But press as they did, they failed to ripple the twine and at the half the game was still scoreless.

The Athletics, feeling lucky to have survived F.C.'s opening half onslaught, decided to come out front in the second half and were quickly rewarded with the opening goal.

This seemed to spark F.C. as Nordine made a tremendous run down the left side, before sliding a perfect pass to McCrae on the right. Darren made no mistake with his first goal playing for F.C. and the game was again tied.

Only moments later Athletics capitalized on some sloppy F.C. defence to regain the lead.

Once the Athletics had the lead, they decided to sit back and defend which allowed F.C. to rebuild their attack. And the lads responded well, putting tremendous pressure on the Athletics goal, but they just could not find the equalizer.

All in all, though the team played very well with strong performances from everyone, especially Chad Little, replacing injured Ken Marr in goal, who played great considering his long lay-off.

This week-end F.C. plays a Challenge Cup Match against Oak Bay on the Ganges School Grounds at 2:15 p.m. Fans are invited to come out and cheer the squad on to a win and advancement to the next round.

Down the GUTTER

We're halfway through our "Trip to Reno", tournament and highest pins over average is tied by Jack Godwin and Bill Crandall. There are still five weeks to go to beat them.

Bowling Tip of the Week: The Pushaway & Backswing - The ball is pushed upwards and away from the body as the first step is taken. The hand should descend in a natural arc. The backswing should be natural and not forced, as forcing results in too high a backswing causing lofting of the ball. Too short a backswing often ends with a jerky delivery with little or no follow-through causing loss of control of the ball at delivery.

TOP SCORES OF THE WEEK
Monday G/A: Margaret Baker - 218, 235/631, Don Goodman - 226.

SCHOOL
News

Gulf Islands Senior Secondary girls volleyball team placed second at the Mid-Island tournament hosted on Salt Spring Thursday, November 2.

The placement earns them a berth in the Vancouver Island Tournament. It will be held at Carhi Secondary in Campbell River on November 9 and 10. Eight schools vied for the championship, with Brentwood College defeating the defending champion Gulf Island squad 6-15, 15-6, 9-15.

The final match between these two rivals was extremely exciting. Both schools won their round-robin pools to advance to the final match, eliminating six of the teams.

In other volleyball action:

The Grade eight girls lost to Mount Prevost in Duncan despite a strong performance by Allison Cunningham.

The Grade eight boys played at Mill Bay against George Bonner and Queen of Angels. The team won four games and lost one. Rick Tyson was outstanding in both matches.

In junior girls action - the team went to Shawnigan and split their games 2-2. Alwyn O'Brien and Natashe Eyles played extremely well for GISS.

The junior boys team continued their undefeated streak by thumping Chemainus 3-0, with Jeff Neilson leading the way. Finally the senior boys defeated Shawnigan 15-10, 15-6 and now go to Nanaimo for the North Island Tournament.

Thirty Years Ago

• A 28-foot fishing vessel owned by Paul Coulam of Chemainus went aground on the rocks in front of the Hyde residence on Sunset Drive. Unfortunately, the tide was dropping and the boat laid over on her side. The RCMP, under the direction of Corporal Smith, assisted in tying up the boat but nothing could be done about it until the next morning.

• Member of Parliament W.F. Matthews visited the Gulf Islands. Matthews met with constituents and spent time examining some of the islands' problems. He said Ganges Harbour was in need of a boat basis and he would do everything possible to bring this about.

• Mac Mouat swore he saw the largest buck on the island and offered to show anyone the 10 empty cartridges in his gun to prove it was still around for someone else to shoot.

• Ganges RCMP reported a quiet Hallowe'en, attributed to the constant surveillance of Constable Bonner and his crew of volunteer citizens.

Twenty-Five Years Ago

• Salt Spring residents planned to form an organization to force some clarification on the plan to move the ferry terminal from Fulford Harbour to Isabella Point. The group hoped to press for an intensive study of the question so an intelligent decision could be made on the need for such a move.

• At a meeting of the Gulf Islands joint council it was confirmed that none of the islands wished to participate in the Duncan regional district. A letter stressing the decision was to be forwarded to the Ministry of Municipal Affairs. "Maybe the islanders are just misfits," said one council member.

• Children descended on Fulford Hall in their Hallowe'en costumes for a costume contest and party sponsored by the Fulford Athletic Club. The judges had a tough time as there were so many entrants to choose from. Eighty bags of candy were given to the young participants.

Twenty Years Ago

• Fireman discharging fireworks at Ganges Harbour on Hallowe'en were pelted with eggs, fruit and vegetables. Wayne Bradley vowed to find a better way to spend the fire hall's money next year, as they had donated hundreds of dollars towards the fireworks display.

Children asked to help conserve power

B.C. Hydro wants the province to be in the dark, November 14, and is seeking help from children to do it.

In addition, the power corporation is sponsoring a contest to encourage youth to write a television commercial extolling its Power Smart program.

The idea for November 14 is to have unnecessary lights turned off at 8 p.m. for an hour.

"Children will have a chance on November 14 to show their parents how strongly they feel about energy conservation," says Gulf Island Hydro manager John Langston.

Hydro estimates a saving of up to 1,000,000 kilowatt hours of electrical energy during the one hour that evening. The savings would be the equivalent of meeting the needs of 100 homes for a year.

For the television commercial, Hydro draws on the fact children watch T.V. and see many commercials which means they are familiar with the structure of the advertisements.

• The Salt Spring Interim Bylaw was given a further reading by the Capital Regional District on Wednesday afternoon. The bylaw was amended in 19 places after a public hearing on the issue.

• Hearing aids were installed in St. George's Church in Ganges. The cost was to be borne in part by a gift from the Order of the Eastern Star in memory of the late Sylvia Birch.

Fifteen Years Ago

• The school road from Mahon Hall to Gulf Islands Secondary School was equipped with a speed bump as an incentive to reduce incidents of speeding on the road. It was found to be extremely effective.

• A brief was presented by the Islands Trust to the Royal Commission on Forest Resources. The Trust was concerned with forested land under both Crown and private tenure and said it was difficult to determine how much timber resource is on all of the islands.

• Commercial vehicle operators were annoyed by the use of the Queen of the Islands vessel on the Fulford-Swartz Bay ferry run. The ship could not accommodate a vehicle weighing over six tons.

• Youth soccer games were almost cancelled because of a lack of transportation for players. More assistance from parents in getting boys to their games was needed, said officials.

• An item in the October 24 Down the Years column indicated that the HMS Ganges had been retired as an active Royal Navy training vessel. In fact, the HMS Ganges Royal Navy training school on England's east coast had been closed down. Driftwood reader Tom Toynbee noted the error.

Ten Years Ago

• The incorporation committee of the Salt Spring Island Planning Association rendered its report. There would be no point in incorporating Salt Spring Island as a district municipality if it would be required to remain within the Islands Trust for planning purposes, it said.

• An increase in ferry fares was announced by transportation minister Alex Fraser. Vehicles would be charged 50 cents more than the current rate and passengers would pay an extra quarter on routes within the Gulf Islands.

• A new fire truck was purchased by the Salt Spring Fire Department. An International with a 1,500 gallon capacity, the truck cost $60,000.

Five Years Ago

• Saturna school trustee Lorraine Campbell retained her seat on the Gulf Islands school board by acclamation. She said the school district had done a good job while being encumbered by provincial government restraint measures. Outer Islands Capital Regional District director Kelly Scott also held his post by acclamation.

• Ganges RCMP warned residents to not park on the crosswalk adjacent to the Pharmasave store. Tickets were to be issued and cars towed away if the practice did not cease.

• A small engine fire in a Salt Spring Freight truck delayed the Quintisa by 25 minutes on a morning run from Swartz Bay to Fulford Harbour. It took two extinguishers to put out the blaze. There was no tow truck on Salt Spring large enough to remove the truck from the ferry so it had to remain on board and return to Swartz Bay.
